OPERATIONS IN NORTH ITALY AFTER CAPTURE OF BOLOGNA

- It is estimated that the German preparations for a withdrawal to the line of the ADIGE are now complete, and that the plan can be put into operation at short notice, if not already started. There are, however, no factual indications that the plan will be put into effect at any stated time. The enemy would prefer, other things being equal, to remain on his present line and retain control of the whole area of northern Italy at present in his hands for various reasons. He will withdraw, therefore, only because of other and more important considerations and in particular because of the need of detaching troops for other theaters. If and when the enemy decides to withdraw, he will execute the withdrawal from his present front only under pressure. The amount of resistance which he will offer will vary according to the extent to which he has already thinned his front.
- 2. The enemy can shorten his present line by withdrawing his left to the line VALLI DI COMACCHIO—MEDICINA—M. GRANDE, allowing him to release up to three to four divisions. If the enemy releases more than this number it will probably involve a withdrawal to the line of the TICINO and PO and subsequently to his strongest prepared positions—the ADIGE or the ALPS lines.
 - 3. The enemy can be credited with three capabilities:
 - a. To assume the offensive.
- b. To remain in present positions and when forced, to withdraw to successive positions.
- c. To withdraw voluntarily to a position behind the PO to enable him to release divisions for other theaters.
- 4. There is no firm evidence of any large scale withdrawal, although preparations to withdraw from western ITALY still continue. Based on past performance, it can be assumed the enemy will adopt the second of his capabilities, making us fight for any ground we desire. See G-2 15th Army Group Appreciation No. 39 dated 5 February attached as Appendix A, for detailed analysis.

- 5. 15th Army Group is charged with the mission of:
 - a. Holding present positions in event of an enemy offensive.
 - b. Containing the maximum number of enemy divisions in ITALY.
 - c. Bringing the enemy to battle to destroy the German forces in ITALY.
 - d. Finally clearing ITALY of the enemy.
- 6. In line with the assigned missions 15th Army Group plan of operations will be staged in three phases:

Phase I—Capture and establishment of a bridgehead around BOLOGNA. Phase II—Developing the PO River positions.

Phase III—Crossing the PO with the object of capturing VERONA and sealing the main outlet out of ITALY and developing the ADIGE River positions.

It is operationally desirable that each phase follow the other without pause. For phase lines and boundaries between Armies see the map attached at Appendix B.

- 7. After taking BOLOGNA and establishing the bridgehead, it is desired that the attack be continued to cross the PO and capture VERONA as soon as practicable. The main axis of 15th Army Group attack will be on a line BOLOGNA—VERONA.
- 8. It is considered that a thrust by 15th Army Group directed north on VE-RONA from the BOLOGNA bridgehead would cause the enemy to withdraw from NW ITALY, thereby making large-scale operations in NW ITALY unnecessary.
- 9. After operations outlined in paragraph 6 have been accomplished and if the situation at the time permits, it will be operationally desirable to seize bridge-heads over the ADIGE River and to capture PADUA and VENICE without pause. If, however, the enemy elects to defend the ADIGE line in strength, it will probably be necessary to halt and regroup and to prepare for a formal river crossing.
- 10. The enemy may decide to withdraw from NW ITALY for the reasons enumerated in paragraph 1 and/or because of a collapse of German resistance, a decision to surrender, or, most likely, because our attack toward VERONA is threatening his major line of withdrawal. In the event he decides to withdraw from NW ITALY, he may follow one of two procedures:
- a. To withdraw all organized resistance from NW ITALY to a line of the TICINO—PO or other prepared lines. Provided this withdrawal occurs prior to our taking BOLOGNA, it will be highly desirable to open the port of GENOA to send in administrative personnel, foodstuffs, AMG representatives, etc.

- b. To withdraw from NW ITALY in conjunction with his withdrawal from his present position. In this event Fifth Army is charged with the protection of 15th Army Group left flank. As our attack proceeds toward VERONA, and when enemy resistance in NW ITALY has lessened to a degree permitting, IV US Corps, operating under 15th Army Group control, will be detached from Fifth Army for operations in NW ITALY in conformance with policies and procedures prescribed by this HQ. IV US Corps will consist of British, Brazilian, Italian and US troops, commanded by Major General Willis D. Crittenberger.
- issued separately. In general the occupation will be divided into two phases. Phase I will be the military occupation and the elimination of any remaining German or Fascist Italian formations in NW ITALY, and the establishment of law and order among the civilian population until the establishment of Allied Military Government can be accomplished. 15th Army Group will be responsible for this phase with No. 2 District under command. The operating agency for this phase will be IV Corps Headquarters with the necessary attachments from No. 2 District.

In Phase II 15th Army Group will pass responsibility for the military administration of NW ITALY to No. 2 District and for Allied Military Government to the Allied Commission, both under command of AFHQ. 15th Army Group, after coordinating with No. 2 District, will report to AFHQ when Phase II can be implemented. If the situation is such that it would be more convenient to hand over NW ITALY to No. 2 District in stages, 15th Army Group will recommend a program for the transfer of responsibilities.

NW ITALY is defined as the area for which Headquarters No. 2 District will be responsible, viz: the compartments of LIGURIA and PIEDMONTE, and the Provinces of VARESE, COMO, MILANO, PAVIA, and PIACENZA.

- outlined in Phases II and III of paragraph 6, viz: the development and crossing of the Po river position with the object of capturing VERONA. Reference should be made to letter, subject "Future Operations," dated 24 January 1945, issued by this headquarters. Plans will provide for early training of personnel in river crossings, utilizing all expedients at our command. Details of the River PO and ADIGE crossing sites and terrain studies are being currently issued and will continue to be issued by this headquarters.
- b. IV Corps Headquarters will prepare plans to occupy the areas liberated in NW ITALY. For purposes of this planning, IV Corps Headquarters is authorized to contact directly No. 2. District, AMG, 15th Army Group, and other necessary headquarters.

Headquarters 15th Army Group A.P.O. No. 777, U.S. Army Florence, Italy 24 March 1945

Phase I operations contained herein confirm verbal instructions issued by Commanding General, 15th Army Group, to Army commanders at conference 18 March 1945. Instructions previously issued that are not in accordance with these instructions are cancelled.

- 1. The offensive directed by this operations instruction should result in a major disaster to the enemy, and consequently have an important effect on the prompt termination of hostilities. If fully successful, it should be of so crushing and thorough a nature that it will be the last coordinated offensive against German forces which the 15th Army Group will make. The attention of all ranks within the 15th Army Group should be called to the unprecedented opportunities which are provided at this time for dealing a mortal blow to the enemy and accelerating the day of victory. It is of vital importance that each individual who contributes to the offensive shall devote fully his energy and abilities to driving the attack home to the enemy wherever he may be found, so that the maximum number of German troops will be destroyed or captured. To this end it is directed that all commanders use every effective means to acquaint thoroughly the troops under their command with the opportunities that lie before them at this time, and that leadership be active throughout the operations to exploit fully every phase of the situation as it develops.
- 2. a. 15th Army Group will launch an all-out attack 10 April 1945 to destroy maximum number enemy forces south of the PO, force crossings of the PO River and capture VERONA. (Note: 15th Army Group D Day will be the day on which Eighth Army launches its attack to cross the SENIO River.)
 - b. 15th Army Group's operation will be divided into phases as follows:
 - I) Phase I—The breaching of the SANTERNO River by Eighth Army and the debouchment of Fifth Army into the PO Valley; to include the capture or isolation of the city of BOLOGNA.

- 2) Phase II—The break-through by either or both Armies to encircle German forces south of the PO River.
- 3) Phase III—The crossing of the PO River and the capture of VERONA.

3. Phase I.

- a. Eighth Army will:
 - 1) Breach the SENIO and SANTERNO Rivers.
 - 2) Attack immediately after a bridgehead is established over the SANTERNO:
 - a) In the direction of BASTIA.
 - b) In the direction of BUDRIO.
 - 3) If the situation is favorable, launch an amphibious operation, combined with a parachute drop, to assist the ground forces to break through the ARGENTA Gap. (Note: Depending upon the success of operations to secure the ARGENTA Gap, the Commanding General, 15th Army Group, in consultation with the General Officer Commanding, Eighth Army, will make the decision that an attack on FERRARA is to be the main effort of Eighth Army with a secondary attack on BUDRIO.)

b. Fifth Army will:

- Launch the main effort of 15th Army Group and attack with the mission of debouching into the PO Valley with a secondary mission of capturing or isolating the city of BOLOGNA. Fifth Army will be prepared to launch the first phase of its main attack on 24 hours notice after D + 2.
- 2) Launch a preliminary attack to capture MASSA (P 9101) on D 5. Be prepared on capture of MASSA to exploit toward LA SPEZIA.
- c. Priority for air support will be given initially to Eighth Army. When Fifth Army's main attack is launched, priority for air will be given to that attack. Air plans for support of these operations will be issued by MATAF.
- d. Notification of postponement of Eighth Army's D Day attack, due to unfavorable weather, will be given by this headquarters 24 hours in advance of H Hour.
 - e. Inter-Army boundary: No change.
 - 4. Phase II.
 - a. Eighth Army will:
 - 1) Prevent enemy forces escaping northwards by seizing and holding

- key road centers which dominate the main crossings over the river RENO, and the PO crossing areas at FERRARA and BONDENO.
- 2) Make earliest possible contact with exploiting columns of Fifth Army in the BONDENO—FERRARA area.
- 3) Send strong mobile columns of armor and infantry for this purpose directed on FERRARA and BONDENO with intermediate objectives PORTOMAGGIORE (M 2669) and S. NICOLO FERRARESE (M 1871), by way of the ARGENTA Gap.

b. Fifth Army will:

- 1) Exploit with armor and infantry in the corridor between the RENO and PANARO Rivers, with a view of joining Eighth Army at the earliest possible time in the BONDENO or FERRARA area, thereby completing the encirclement of enemy forces south of the PO River.
- 2) Seize S. GIOVANNI (L 7765). Thence direct the main effort on CENTO (L 8574)—S. AGOSTINO (L 9381)—BONDENO, denying to the enemy crossings of the RENO River.
- 3) Launch a secondary effort northwest from the S. GIOVANNI area to seize crossings of the PANARO River near BOMPORTO and CAMPOSANTO, thence to turn northward in the corridor between the PANARO and SECCHIA River, moving on OSTIGLIA.
- c. Inter-Army boundary: Present boundary thence CASTENASO (L 9949)—CASTEL MAGGIORE (L 9057)—ARGELATO (L 8964)—CASTELLO D'ARGILE (L 8669)—CENTO (L 8574) all inclusive to Eighth Army, thence exclusive to Eighth Army FINALE (L 8685)—CENSELLI (F 9205).

5. Phase III.

- a. It is vitally important that both Armies be prepared to seize any opportunity to capture existing bridging and ferrying equipment useful in a crossing of the PO River. It is probable that such opportunities may occur during Phase II operations. In the event that any means of crossing are secured by forces of either Army, every effort will be made to establish a bridgehead over the river and to initiate the movement through this bridgehead of all available forces for the exploitation on VERONA.
- b. If, upon reaching the PO River, suitable means of crossing are not available, reconnaissance of crossing sites will be begun and bridging equipment moved up as rapidly as possible.
 - c. In the event that bridging equipment must be brought forward and crossings over the PO River made against enemy opposition, additional instructions will be issued covering these operations.

- d. Operations Instruction Number 3, this headquarters, dated 12 February 1945, states that as our attack progresses toward VERONA, and when enemy resistance in northwest Italy has lessened to a degree permitting, IV U.S. Corps will be detached from Fifth Army for independent operations in northwest Italy. The instructions in Operations Instruction Number 3 remain current but are in no way intended to interfere with the employment of IV Corps in the main battle.
- e. Separate instructions covering the occupation of northeast Italy will be issued shortly.
 - f. Inter-Army boundary: Later.
 - 6. Naval Support.
- a. The following measures are being taken by Royal Navy to assist 15th Army Group's offensive:
 - 1) On East coast.
 - a) Prior to D Day, naval activity designed to simulate the preparation of an amphibious operation in the area of PORTO GARIBALDI.
 - b) At a date to be selected by Eighth Army after D Day, a demonstration by landing craft and light supporting units off PORTO GARIBALDI to support the cover plan. A small Commando raid will also be landed North of PORTO GARIBALDI if practicable.
 - 2) On West coast.

 Naval bombardment in support of Fifth Army's attack along West coast. A demonstration by light naval craft off CHIAVARI to simulate a landing at a time to be selected by 15th Army Group.
 - b. Plans for Royal Navy operations will be issued separately.
- 7. Present enemy strengths and probable reaction to this operation issue separately.

Preparation of the Fifth Army History

The Fifth Army History was produced by the Historical Section, Headquarters Fifth Army, located at the rear echelon of that headquarters. Though personnel of the section came ashore at Salerno, work on the written history in its present form was essentially begun in December 1943, and was completed in August 1945. The period or phase covered in each part of the Fifth Army History was delimited by the Army Historian, within 1 or 2 months after the conclusion of the action involved, and was then assigned to one officer for study. Other personnel were allotted specialized topics to prepare for the officer in charge. With such assistance, each part required approximately 4 to 5 months to complete.

Ground reconnaissance was carried out thoroughly at all times. The personnel of the section usually had some opportunity to study the action as it progressed, though the time-lag limited first-hand observation. In the Anzio, Second Winter, and Po Valley periods members of the section remained with forward elements for considerable periods of time. Extensive interviewing below the level of the Army staff was handicapped by the limited personnel available, by the other commitments of the Historical Section, and by the scale of the action, covering a wide front in difficult terrain. Officers of lower echelons were interviewed at Army Headquarters whenever available, and on points where the written records were completely inadequate further information was sought in the field. Apart from discussions of the operations with members of the Army staff, all parts of the Fifth Army History were read and criticized by the G-2 and G-3 sections and by the Chief of Staff before being approved by the Army Commander. The policy throughout was to allow complete freedom to the Historical Section in the preparation of the history, with occasional suggestions as to emphasis or interpretation of the motives dictating certain decisions.

Since this history was prepared at the Army level, it does not often go below battalions in description of the action. The narrative relies primarily on written journals, journal files, and narratives submitted monthly by the Army general staff sections, the corps, the divisions and their subordinate units, and independent Army units. Emphasis was placed primarily on the journals and journal files of the infantry regiments and divisional field artillery battalions as being closest to the event, but the records of all units were collated carefully in accordance with sound historical principles. Though footnotes have not been furnished, the reader who desires to check the action of any unit may do so easily in the monthly narrative and journal of that unit for the period in question together with the records of adjacent and higher units for the same period. The Army G–3 journal file of messages was especially useful on the Army level. Discussions of Army logistics were based partly on interviews with the relevant staff sections, partly on bimonthly (later weekly) reports by the special staff sections, and partly on the written history of the G-4, medical, quartermaster, and engineer sections. Accounts of the actions of independent commands, such as the naval and air forces involved and the adjacent ground units, were derived from the Army G-3 journal file and from official reports prepared by the commands in question.

Certain material was not used in the preparation of this history. Newspaper accounts, including those in the Mediterranean edition of The Stars and Stripes, may furnish additional color, but the detail almost always was found to be of questionable accuracy; they were accordingly not employed. Personal narratives by participants in the Italian campaign were rarely obtainable and could be used only with the greatest of caution. The personal files of the Army Commander and Chief of Staff, together with the records of their telephone conversations, were not available. Though information on planning was occasionally obtained from higher commands (15th Army Group and Allied Force Headquarters), this history does not purport to cover the activities of such commands in detail. Unit morning reports were not studied.

The following persons, at one time or another members of the Historical Section, Fifth Army, contributed to the preparation and publication of the Fifth Army History: Col. John D. Forsythe, Inf; Lt. Col. Chester G. Starr, Jr., Inf; Maj. Roy Lamson, Jr., AUS; Maj. Harris G. Warren, AUS; Capt. William D. McCain, CAC; Capt. John Bowditch III, CE; Capt. Bruce K. Myers, Inf; Capt. Edward A. Reep, CE; 1st Lt. David Bacon, AUS; 1st Lt. John R. Vosburgh, Jr., Inf; 1st Lt. Louis G. Geiger, CAC; 1st Lt. Robert W. Komer, AUS; 2d Lt. Walter A. Hamilton, AUS; 2d Lt. Sidney T. Azel R. Overton.

This part of the Army History was prepared under the direction of Lt. Col. Chester G. Starr, Jr., Army Historian, by Lt. Louis G. Geiger with the assistance of Capt. Bruce K. Myers, Lt. John R. Vosburgh, Jr., and Lt. Walter A. Hamilton. The maps were drawn by S/Sgt. Alvin J. Weinberger, Sgt. Charles W. Petersen, and Sgt. Andrew H. DeFrancesco.

The volume was printed and bound by the Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C.
